Whakataukī (Proverbs)

1. E kore te kūmara e kī ake ki a ia he māngaro. “The kūmara does not announce it is tasty.” – A person should not ‘blow their own trumpet’.
2. He puku moa! “A stomach of a moa.” – The saying implies that someone is gluttonous.
3. Iti noa ana, he pito mata “Although it is small, it is uncooked.” – The reference is to the kūmara of which a small, uncooked portion may sprout to produce many more. In ancient times this saying might refer to the survival of a warrior whose companions had fallen. Today, it might be used for any small investment which it is hoped to reap a good return.
4. Kai ana mai koe he atua, noho ana au he tangata. “You are eating like a god while I am sitting here as a person.” – This proverb illustrates a lack of hospitality. If visitors arrive as you are eating, they should be asked to join in. This rule holds whether the visitors are important or not. In ancient times it was thought that even a visitor who seemed common and ignorant might possess magical powers.
5. Kia tau te mauri o te kai ki raro. “Let the mauri of the food rest below.” – The mauri of food crops, especially kūmara, was usually imbued in stone or carved wooden figure described as the taumata atua or abiding place of the gods who would watch over the plants. The saying also applied to diners who wanted to linger after their meal to allow the food to settle and be digested. Diners should not be expected to hurry through their meal and so not allow the mauri of the food to settle properly.
